AT THE END OF THE LAKE

by Michael Carden

At The End Of The Lake is a murder mystery novel set in the English Lake District. It features Sophie Armstrong, a young woman who is offered a job with a private investigator specialising in missing persons. Before she can accept the role, the private investigator is found dead at the foot of a sheer cliff. But was he murdered? Sophie is persuaded to investigate his last five cases to unravel the truth. In doing so, she puts herself in danger.

A cosy mystery, the action takes place across the English Lake District, with Keswick and Borrowdale featuring.

About the author

Michael Carden is the author of six successful books: a trilogy of historical novels based on Alfred the Great and three humorous books recounting his cycling misadventures, which have regularly reached the top spot in Amazon's cycling e-books listings.

Mike has spent most of his life in the Lake District, and knows it very well. He and his wife brought up their three children there and enjoy the Lakes now with their grandchildren whenever they can. He has run his own businesses nearly all his working life, and the imprint 'Bike Ride Books' is no exception, with nearly 30,000 books sold to date.

Mike has previously written a highly praised book about Lakeland, cycling over every pass and to every lake. ('For the armchair adventurer, cycling the Lakes with Mike is an enlightening experience' - The North West Evening Mail). An extract has even been published in 'A String of Pearls', an anthology of Lake District writings, alongside extracts from Dickens, Wordsworth and many more.

Cover artwork

Mike commissioned an oil painting for the cover of At The End Of The Lake, with the painting also featuring in the novel. The painting is by Sheila Fowler, whose work is exhibited by The Northern Lights Gallery in Keswick.

Reviews of 'At The End Of The Lake'

"As I read the last few lines I was imagining watching a movie."

"Hard to put down."
